About this Privacy Policy

The Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry (the department) recognises the importance of protecting your privacy and personal information. The department respects your right to privacy and complies with the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth) (Privacy Act) in relation to handling your personal information.

This Privacy Policy tells you:

- the kinds of personal information the department may collect and hold about you and other individuals;
- how the department may collect, use, store and disclose your personal information, and for what purpose; and
- how to access and/or correct your personal information that is held by the department.

This Privacy Policy uses a 'layered policy' format, which means that it offers layers of greater or lesser detail so you can decide what is relevant to you and how much to read. If you want a snapshot of the department's personal information handling practices, you can look at the summary of our Privacy Policy available on the department's website at agriculture.gov.au.

This Privacy Policy is reviewed and updated annually. Any updated version will be available on the department's website.

Application

This Privacy Policy applies to the department and to APP entities which the department assists in complying with Privacy Act requirements. All references to the department in this policy includes those entities (unless the context requires otherwise).

Please contact the department if you have a query about the application of this policy, or to make comments or suggestions. Our contact details are provided at the end of this policy.

Accessibility

It is important that our information is accessible to everyone.

You can request an accessible version of this policy using the contact details at the end of this document.

We will take reasonable steps to provide alternate access, such as in an alternate format or language.

The department's obligations under the Privacy Act

As an Australian Government agency, the department is bound by the Australian Privacy Principles (APPs) in the Privacy Act and the Australian Government Agencies Privacy Code \(Privacy Code\). These obligations extend to the department's employees, contractors and agents.

The Privacy Act regulates how agencies collect, use, store and disclose personal information, including sensitive information, and how individuals may access and correct personal information held about them. The Privacy Code sets out additional requirements that apply to Australian Government agencies.

You can learn more about the Privacy Act, the APPs and the Privacy Code on the website of the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner \(OAIC\) at <https://www.oaic.gov.au/>.

Privacy by design

The department has adopted a 'privacy by design' approach to managing personal information. This means embedding good privacy practices across all aspects of its functions and activities, and taking proactive steps to identify and manage privacy risks. The department achieves this by taking reasonable steps to build privacy into its business practices, workforce training, project objectives and physical infrastructures. This enables the department to ensure compliance with the APPs in an open and transparent way.

The department's approach to handling personal information

The department's approach to handling personal information is aligned with the APPs. In particular, the department:

- may collect your personal information where this is reasonably necessary for, or directly related to, one or more of its functions or activities;
- may collect your sensitive information where you consent, the collection is authorised or required by law, or where the collection is otherwise allowed under the Privacy Act;
- will only use and disclose your personal information for the purposes for which it was collected, or otherwise in accordance with the Privacy Act; and
- will notify you of the purpose that your personal information is being collected, either at the time of collection, or as soon as practicable thereafter.

What is personal information

In this Privacy Policy, the term "personal information" has the meaning given to it in the Privacy Act. "Personal information" is any information or opinion about an identified individual, or an individual that is reasonably identifiable. The information or opinion does not have to be true or recorded in a material form.

What is sensitive information

'Sensitive information' is a subset of personal information and generally has a higher level of privacy protection than other personal information.

Sensitive information is personal information that contains information or an opinion about an individual's:

- racial or ethnic origin

- political opinion or association
- religious beliefs or affiliations
- philosophical beliefs
- trade or professional associations and memberships
- union membership
- sexual orientation or practices
- criminal record
- health or genetic information; or
- certain biometric information.

Application to business information

Business information does not generally fall within the definition of “personal information” under the Privacy Act, but it may do so where the information relates to sole traders and partnerships. Where business information contains personal information, this Privacy Policy will apply to the personal information component.

Personal information collected by the department

Types of personal information

The department collects and holds different types of personal information in order to perform its functions and activities. This information can include:

Remaining anonymous or using a pseudonym

The department understands that you may not want to provide your personal information in certain situations. You may remain anonymous or use a pseudonym when dealing with the department.

However, in some circumstances, this may mean the department cannot provide the products or services you require, or the desired level of service.

Where it is impracticable or not possible for the department to deal with you anonymously or through a pseudonym, the department may ask you to identify yourself to enable the department to action your request and carry out its functions and activities.

How the department collects and holds your personal information

Information collected from you

The department will generally collect personal information directly from you. This may include:

- during your conversations with the department or its representatives via telephone or in person;
- through your written correspondence, including email and post;
- when you access and use the department's website or web-based channels, including social media platforms; and
- when you submit an application, survey or form, in hard copy or electronically.

Information collected from third parties

The Privacy Act permits the department to collect your personal information from a third party if:

- you consent;
- the collection is required or authorised under an Australian law, or a court/tribunal order; or
- it is unreasonable or impracticable to collect the information directly from you.

Subject to the above conditions, the department may collect your personal information from third parties, including:

- persons who are authorised to act on your behalf;
- other government agencies or entities;
- institutions or industry bodies that assist with achieving the department's functions or activities;
- law enforcement and regulatory agencies;
- financial institutions and credit reporting agencies;
- contractors and service providers to the department;
- publicly available websites and online databases; and
- international bodies relevant to the department's functions or activities.

Unsolicited personal information

Unsolicited personal information received by the department will be assessed and handled in accordance with the Privacy Act. If the department determines that we can lawfully retain the information, we will take reasonable steps to give you a privacy notice (or ensure you are aware of how we will use and disclose your information), unless it is impractical to do so.

Methods of collection

The department collects personal information through a range of channels, including:

- telephone, facsimile and written correspondence, including paper and emails
- paper and electronic forms and surveys
- meetings
- manual and online databases and services
- department websites and web-based channels, including online portals and social media
- publicly available third party websites and web-based channels, including social media
- taped interviews, photographs and audio-visual recordings
- security vetting procedures and digital footprint checking software

- cookies, web analytics and data collection services.

At or before the time the department collects your personal information (or as soon as practicable afterwards), the department will take reasonable steps to provide you with a privacy notice (or ensure you are aware of how we will use and disclose your information), unless it is impractical to do so.

Information handled through our website and online services

A variety of information is handled using the department’s website, web-based channels and third party online services. Some of this may be personal information, which is summarised in the table below.

Information type	Treatment
Emails and electronic forms	The department’s servers may record your email address if you send the department a message online. Your email address will not be added to a mailing list unless you have provided it to the department in order to subscribe to one of the department’s subscription services. When you send the department a message online, the department’s servers may also record your usage data in the form of page URLs that you have visited on the department’s websites. These URLs will be used for research purposes only within the department. Where you choose to send the department a completed electronic form that includes your personal details, the department collects personal information such as your name, address and email address. The information collected by email or electronic forms will be used only for the purpose for which you provided it, unless an exception applies. For those who do not wish to use the internet to transmit information, the department provides alternative ways of providing information. For example, forms may be printed (or obtained in hard copy) and lodged by post.
Payment information	If you choose to pay for a service or product using secure credit card payment facilities available on the department’s website, you will be asked to provide your credit card details. Credit card details are encrypted from the moment they are entered into an electronic form. All other information entered into an electronic form will be encrypted upon submission to the department. The department stores encrypted credit card details only until the industry standard charge back period has expired (currently 10 months).
Clickstream data	The department makes a record of your visits to its website and logs the following information for statistical purposes: the user's Internet Protocol (IP) address, the date and time of the visit to the site, the web pages accessed and documents downloaded, the previous site visited, and the user's web browser and operating system.
Google Analytics	In addition to web server logs, the department’s website uses Google Analytics, a web analytics service provided by Google Incorporated (Google). Reports obtained from Google Analytics are used to help improve the department’s website. Google Analytics uses 'cookies' to help analyse how users use the site. The information generated by the cookie about your use of the website (including your IP address) will be transmitted to and stored by Google on servers in the United States of America. Google will use this information for the purpose of evaluating your use of the department’s website, compiling reports on website activity for website operators and providing other services relating to website

SurveyMonkey	Where appropriate, the department collects information through SurveyMonkey, a United States-based service developed and managed by SurveyMonkey Incorporated. Through SurveyMonkey, the department conducts surveys. SurveyMonkey adheres to its own privacy policy which is available at https://www.surveymonkey.com/mp/legal/privacy/.
Biosecurity Portal	The Biosecurity Portal allows importers, Customs Brokers and Approved Arrangements to book and manage inspections. Personal information collected by the Biosecurity Portal is treated as confidential and is protected by the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth). When registering as a new user on the Biosecurity Portal, the department will record your name, e-mail address, telephone number, occupation, organisation, and other personal information provided to meet security requirements and for the delivery, administration and ongoing development of the Biosecurity Portal services. The Biosecurity Portal is integrated with myGovID and the Powerapps Portal. The Biosecurity Portal receives personal information (including first name, last name, ABN and email address) from myGovID and passes this information to the Powerapps Portal. Both myGovID and the Powerapps Portal use cookies. Below is a summary of the cookies used by these portals. myGovID myGovID is administered by Services Australia and uses session-based cookies. Session-based cookies are temporary cookie files transferred to your computer and erased when you close your browser. These cookies are used by myGov to allow you to perform functions within myGov once you have signed in and to gather anonymous website usage data to help improve myGov. myGovID does not use persistent cookies. These are cookies that remain on your hard drive until you erase them, or they expire. You can change your web browser setting to reject cookies, however, some functionality on the myGov website may be affected if you reject cookies. For more details, please see https://my.gov.au/mygov/content/html/privacy.html Microsoft Powerapps Portal The Powerapps Portal uses a range of different cookies for a variety of purposes. Most of these cookies are session-based cookies. For more information about the Powerapps Portal please see: https://docs.microsoft.com/en-us/powerapps/maker/portals/admin/portal-cookies
Cloud based data collection system	The department uses a cloud-based 'software-as-a-service' data collection and analysis system to check the digital footprint of particular individuals for employment checks, security vetting, compliance and law enforcement purposes. The system may be used to review and collect publicly available information (already disclosed in the public domain) about an individual's use of social media platforms. The system can only be used by authorised users and for departmental purposes.

Hotjar	The department uses Hotjar to better understand the needs of users of its IT systems (including the Export Service) and to optimise these services and users' experience. Hotjar is a technology service that helps the department better understand its users' experience (e.g. how much time they spend on which pages, which links they choose to click, what users do and don't like, etc.) and this enables the department to build and maintain its IT services with user feedback. Hotjar uses cookies and other technologies to collect data on users' behaviour and their devices. This can include a device's IP address (processed during the user's session and stored in a de-identified form), device screen size, device type (unique device identifiers), browser information, geographic location (country only), and the preferred language used to display the department's website. Hotjar stores this information for the department in a pseudonymised user profile. Hotjar is contractually forbidden to sell any of the data collected for the department. Hotjar stores its data through servers hosted by Amazon Web Services (AWS), located in Ireland. For further details, please see the 'about Hotjar' section of Hotjar's support site.
Microsoft Teams	The department uses Microsoft Teams as its primary collaboration tool. The department's servers may record your name, email address and status information (where relevant) if you communicate with the department's staff through Microsoft Teams.

How the department holds your personal information

The department will 'hold' your personal information where it:

- physically possesses a record containing your personal information (including storage on servers owned and operated by the Department); or
- has the right or power to deal with the information, even if it does not physically possess it (such as where the personal information is stored on servers owned or operated by a third party, to which the department has access to, or in archived files).

Storage and security

The department holds personal information in a range of audio-visual, paper and electronic based records (including in cloud-based applications and services). The department complies with the Australian Government Protective Security Policy Framework for protecting departmental resources (including information) from harm or unauthorised access. Personal information is held in accordance with the collection and security requirements of the APPs, the department's policies and procedures, and the Australian Government Protective Security Policy Framework.

If personal information held by the department is lost, or subject to unauthorised access or disclosure, the department will respond in line with the OAIC's guidance. The department aims to provide timely advice to affected individuals if a data breach is likely to result in serious harm.

Retention and destruction

The department will comply with all Commonwealth legal requirements in relation the retention and destruction of records containing personal information, including information management requirements in the Archives Act 1983 (Cth). Further information is available on the National Archives of Australia website at <https://www.naa.gov.au/information-management/information-management-legislation>.

Purpose of collection	Use and disclosure
	Examples include suppliers and other third parties within whom the department has commercial or business relationships, marketing, research, managing grants, advisors and consultants, and related purposes and programmes.

Workplace health and safety

The department may collect and use the health information of its workers to ensure the health and safety of an individual workers, their workplace, colleagues and the workplace generally.

This includes managing potential, actual and suspected cases of COVID-19 or similar medical conditions, and may involve collecting and using personal information about a workers’ family members, or others with whom they live for that purpose.

The department may disclose health and other personal information to departmental officers on a need-to-know basis for staff management and WHS purposes. The department may also need, or be legally required to, disclose health and other personal information to other government entities or third parties, including health authorities, for health and safety purposes.

Disclosure to third parties

The department may disclose your personal information to third parties, where this is permitted under the Privacy Act. Those third parties include the entities or persons identified on page 10 “Information collected from third parties” and in the table above.

If the department discloses your personal information to a third party, it will take reasonable steps to ensure that the third party handles your personal information in the same manner as the department and in accordance with the APPs.

The department imposes privacy obligations on all contracting parties, including in its funding deeds, service contracts, data sharing arrangements and commercial agreements.

Overseas disclosure

The department may disclose personal information to overseas recipients in limited circumstances, where this is reasonably necessary, or directly related to, our work.

This may include, for example, disclosure to peer reviewers anywhere in the world where the appropriate scientific expertise exists, or to a foreign government or agency.

If it is likely that your personal information will be disclosed to an overseas recipient, we will take reasonable steps to notify you and we will only disclose the information as permitted under the Privacy Act to the overseas recipient. We will also take reasonable steps to ensure the overseas recipient treats your personal information in accordance with the APPs, such as though our contractual agreements.

Privacy Impact Assessments

The department is committed to undertaking Privacy Impact Assessments (PIA) for high privacy risk projects.

The Privacy Code requires that PIAs are conducted for all high privacy risk projects. Section 12(2) of the Privacy Code states that a project may be a high privacy risk project if the agency reasonably considers that the project involves any new or changed ways of handling personal information that are likely to have a significant impact on the privacy of individuals.

The department maintains a public register of the PIAs it conducts which is available on the department's website at <https://www.agriculture.gov.au/about/commitment/privacy>

How to access and correct your personal information

How to request access or a correction

You may request access to personal information the department holds about you at any time. You may also ask the department to update or correct your personal information if you believe it is incomplete, incorrect or misleading.

All requests must be made in writing as follows:

- Members of the public and external stakeholders - submit a request via email or letter to the relevant business area within the department. For example, applicants for a grant program should first contact the program administrator.
- Current / former employees and workforce contractors - please contact People and Policy Branch or use the general contact details at the end of this policy.

If you do not know which area of the department holds your personal information, you can use the 'contact us' link on the department's website or contact details provided at the end of this Privacy Policy.

How will the department consider your request

The department will consider each request on a case-by-case basis, and in accordance with the Privacy Act and other applicable legislation.

Where the department agrees to the access or correction, it will do so in the manner requested by you where this is reasonable and practicable. The department will not charge you for providing your personal information to you, or for the costs of making any corrections to your personal information. This is different to requests made under the Freedom of Information Act 1982 (Cth).

If the department agrees to correct your personal information, it will also take reasonable steps to inform other entities of the correction (which are bound by the Privacy Act) if the department had previously disclosed your personal information to them.

The Privacy Act allows the department, in certain circumstances, to refuse access to personal information (or refuse access in the requested manner), or to refuse to make a correction. In this situation, the department will:

- provide you with a written notice including the reasons for the refusal;
- provide you with information regarding available complaint mechanisms; and,
- at your request, take reasonable steps to associate a statement with the personal information that you believe it to be inaccurate, out of date, incomplete, irrelevant or misleading.

How to make a complaint or report a possible privacy breach

The department takes complaints seriously and treats each complaint on a case-by-case basis.

When a complaint or report of a possible privacy breach is received, the department will conduct an internal investigation. The department will take reasonable steps to acknowledge your complaint and respond within a reasonable amount of time (which is usually 30 days).

How to make a complaint

If you believe the department has breached your privacy, please contact us using the contact information below.

We will need your contact information and details of the incident so we can investigate it properly. This is best achieved if the complaint is made in writing.

Please note that if you do not provide sufficient information, the department may not be able to fully assess and respond to your complaint.

Once the department has completed its internal enquiries, you will be advised of the outcome in writing.

If you are unsatisfied with the department's response

If you are not satisfied with the department's response or how it handled your complaint, you can make a complaint to the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner (OAIC). Information on how to make a complaint can be found on the OAIC website at <https://www.oaic.gov.au/privacy/privacy-complaints>.

You can also make a complaint to the Commonwealth Ombudsman at <https://www.ombudsman.gov.au/what-we-do/Can-we-help-you>.
